eplGO branch on university campus to close Satellite library space to be reestablished in higher priority service areas of Edmonton

For immediate release:

EDMONTON, AB, October 17, 2014 – The Edmonton Public Library (EPL) and the University of Alberta (U of A) have mutually agreed to close eplGO, an EPL satellite branch housed in the university's science and technology library. The storefront model will instead be reestablished in areas of Edmonton without easy access to public library service.

Maintaining eplGO, located in the Cameron Library, is no longer a funding priority for the U of A. Usage of the branch, which opened in 2009, has also declined. It closes effective December 19, 2014.

"Both parties regret having to close this branch, as it is a unique example of the partnership between EPL and the U of A in providing library services in an academic setting," said Linda Cook, CEO of EPL. "While this will affect our on-campus customers, 66 per cent of eplGO users have indicated they visit and use other EPL locations."

The eplGO model features a sampling of EPL's core services designed to quickly serve growing communities that do not have easy access to a library branch. It is a priority for EPL to reestablish these spaces in underserved neighbourhoods.

The U of A campus is within the Strathcona branch catchment area and students will still be able to use their ONEcard as an EPL library card through the L-Pass program. They are also granted free LRT access with their ONEcard and can easily visit the nearby Stanley A. Milner Library in downtown Edmonton.

Areas of the city without such proximity to EPL branches being looked at for eplGO locations include Pilot Sound/McConachie, Lewis Estates and Rutherford/Allard.

"There are several areas in Edmonton without easy access to a library branch," said Cook. "As our city continues its incredible growth, we want to focus on providing what is needed in these higher priority areas until further capital funding can be secured for full-service libraries."
