That’s how EPL rolls!
New literacy van brings EPL programs and services outside the library and into the community

For immediate release:

EDMONTON, AB, July 23, 2014 – The Edmonton Public Library is hitting the streets to bring exciting library programs and the latest technology to Edmontonians.

The first in a series of four literacy vans, epl2go will visit new neighbourhoods and underserved communities in Edmonton, creating a pop up library space for learning, discovering and creating.

“We don’t want location or transportation to be a barrier for any Edmontonian when it comes to using the library,” said Linda Cook, CEO of EPL. “This is a library on wheels for citizens without easy access to our buildings or website.”

epl2go features a full suite of services, including puppet shows and family storytimes, as well as digital fun with iPads, robotics, gaming and more. The van will appear everywhere from schools, parks and senior centres to hospitals, community leagues and more. There is even an opportunity to suggest an event or organization for epl2go to visit.

“At EPL we work to identify needs and meet them by creating community connections, and epl2go provides us another way to be out and about,” said Cook. “Think food truck – but for your brain!”

The launch of the first of four literacy vans – one for each quadrant of the city – has been made possible due to ongoing donations to the library. Approximately $250,000 is required for equipment and program costs for one van, and this ongoing project is one of two Centennial fundraising efforts on which EPL is focused.
